

International Relations and AP Comparative Government & Politics

Two electives in ONE!

International Relations

This class is an introduction into the field of political science and international relations

This class focuses on the important political, economic, religious and socio-cultural issues facing our contemporary world.

Topics include:

- war and human nature
- democracy and peace
- power politics
- free trade
- globalization
- international terrorism

Why take this class?

- If you're interested in political science, international affairs, law, business, and politics this class is a good start.

AP Comparative Government and Politics

It will introduce students to the discipline of political science and more specifically the sub-field of comparative politics.

This class exposes students to comparative theories, the politics and governmental organizations of 6 main nation-states, facts, and principles through reading, writing, research, technology, and critical thinking activities.

Topics include:

- Information on the six core countries for the APCG Test: Britain, Russia, China, Iran, Nigeria and Mexico.
- Strategies for successful completion of the APCG Test

Why take this class?

- If you're interested in political science, international affairs, law, business, and politics this class is a good start.
- This is a 5 point class

This course meets the “g” requirement for UC’s and CSU’s